++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Frost and ice tonight. A cold but sunny day tomorrow.

This Evening and Tonight:
Scattered wintry showers at first then mostly dry with lengthy clear skies inland overnight. A widespread and severe frost will quickly form with the risk of icy stretches. A few light showers are likely along the east coast at first. Minimum temperature -5 deg C (23 deg F).

Saturday:
A very cold start but fine, with good spells of sunshine. Clouding over from the north by the evening. Feeling cold with frost and ice lingering in shaded areas. Maximum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Turning cloudier on Sunday, after a cold and frosty start. Outbreaks of rain will slowly edge southwards later Monday. Starting dry Tuesday before rain later. Breezier and turning less cold.
